

TIME TABLE FOR THE MAIL SERVICE

Great Britain & New South Wales

Via San Francisco, Honolulu and Auckland.

(Reserved exclusively for the Hawaiian Islands.)

OUTWARD TRIP FROM LONDON.

LEAVE

NEW YORK

San Francisco

Honolulu

San Francisco

Honolulu

San Francisco

Honolulu

San Francisco

Honolulu

San Francisco

Honolulu

San Francisco

Honolulu

San Francisco

Honolulu

San Francisco

Honolulu

San Francisco

Honolulu

San Francisco

Honolulu

San Francisco

Honolulu

San Francisco

Honolulu

San Francisco

Honolulu

San Francisco

Honolulu

San Francisco

Honolulu

San Francisco

Honolulu

San Francisco

Honolulu

San Francisco

Honolulu

San Francisco

Honolulu

San Francisco

Honolulu

San Francisco

Honolulu

San Francisco

Honolulu

San Francisco

Honolulu

San Francisco

Honolulu

San Francisco

Honolulu

San Francisco

Honolulu

San Francisco

Honolulu

San Francisco

Honolulu

San Francisco

Honolulu

San Francisco

Honolulu

San Francisco

Honolulu

San Francisco

Honolulu

San Francisco

Honolulu

San Francisco

Honolulu

San Francisco

Honolulu

San Francisco

Honolulu

San Francisco

Honolulu

San Francisco

Honolulu

San Francisco

Honolulu

San Francisco

Honolulu

San Francisco

Honolulu

San Francisco

Honolulu

San Francisco

Honolulu

San Francisco

NOTES OF THE WEEK

The whaling bark Helen Mar arrived this morning from Honolulu.

Bark Mary Belle Roberts, or the D. C. Murray, is expected to arrive next week—Monday, the 20th.

The steamer Kiliana will leave for Honolulu, returning on Sunday morning.

The Gazette can be procured at the counter in the newspaper, stamped, ready for mailing, price 10 cents. Also the illustrated paper, with portrait of the Prince. Price, 10 cents.

RECORDED INLAND.—This fine vessel which went ashore near Kalahele two weeks ago, has since become a total wreck. The greater part of her cargo was saved.

BARK MARY BELLE ROBERTS.—This favorite packet arrived at San Francisco on Thursday, the 20th inst., twenty days from the port. She was well advertised to leave at an early date on her return.

PIANO TUNING.—The services of Mr. Schmidt, leader of the Government Band, can always be obtained by those having pianos to be tuned, by application at his residence.

TELETYPE.—We would call attention to the column advertisement of groceries by Messrs. Fried and Bush in today's issue. As far as our experience goes, their goods are of the choicest, and their charges are reasonable.

FRENCH COMMUNITARIANS.—Advices from Tahiti report that a French ship had arrived there from New Caledonia, with 2000 stranded communists, who are being returned to Paris, but they have the option of remaining at Tahiti.

REAL ESTATE.—The land of Opama, in Hanalei, island of Maui, was sold at public auction by Mr. C. S. Burton on Saturday last, for the sum of $4500, which was at the rate of three dollars per acre. Mr. W. H. Bailey was the purchaser.

SHAKE IN THE GRASS.—Mr. Cummings brought to the Gazette office yesterday a "squirrel" which he found in a box of California oats. The "squirrel" had evidently crawled into the box for a nap, and had his hind leg jammed out of him when the screws were put on.

Among the passengers booked for the R. M. S. Zealandia will meet the name of Mr. J. O. Carter, Registrar of Public Accounts, and recently a member of the Honolulu Press, who is about to take a well-earned vacation. We wish him a pleasant excursion and a safe return.

FREAK OF NATURE.—One of the Hawaiian folk believes in an overabundant phenomenon last week, which must have been due to a cockle with a single eye. It consisted of two eggs connected at the ends by a ligament two or three inches in length, somewhat similar to that which united the Siamese twins. The eggs were rather smaller than usual, and contained the yolk and the other white. What kind of a chicken they would have resulted in had they been permitted to hatch, it is difficult to say, but we presume that the chicken would have been at one end of the ligament, and its feet and claws at the other end.

WHEN AND HOW TO EAT FRUIT.—When fruit does harm it is because it is eaten at improper times, in improper quantities, or before it is ripened and fit for use. The late Dr. Williams distinguished physician has said that if patients would make a practice of eating a couple of good oranges before breakfast from February to June his practice would be gone. The principal error is that we do not eat enough of fruit; that we eat it at the wrong time, and that we eat it in the wrong way. We need the medicinal action of the fruit in our system, and its cooling, corrective influence.

There has been a great drought in California, causing loss of sheep and cattle, owing to the want of pasture. We see frequent notices of large bands of sheep being driven to the mountains to obtain food, in some cases with a loss of one half the number. A San Jose paper says: "Sixteen men are having a hard time in the lower counties of the State. The grass is both short and scarce, and the sheep and cattle are suffering. They cannot sustain their lambs, which consequently have to be killed. In addition, the sheep, in their scramble for food, are leaving all their wool on the bushes."

The small steamer Zealandia sailed from Sydney April 7, and is therefore 18 days out-to-day, and fully due. She will stop in port probably eight or ten hours, and proceed on to San Francisco. Among the passengers booked to leave by her are: Chief Justice Harris, Miss F. Harris, Mrs. F. Harris, Hon. H. A. Wideman, Dr. O. S. Cummings and his wife, Mrs. Cummings, Mr. J. O. Carter, Mr. W. R. Castle, W. H. Corwell and wife, Mrs. Robinson, Mr. Leonard and child, Col. Little, J. M. Ross and wife, J. L. Richardson, G. C. McGowan, and daughter, Mrs. G. E. Williams, Mr. H. P. Baldwin, A. W. Peterson, W. L. Hopper, F. R. Ott, and some 20 others.

NARROW ESCAPE.—Sunday evening last, while the section of the Fort Street Church was engaged in lighting up the edifice, preparatory to the evening service, the iron rod attached to one of the large chandeliers over the main aisle gave way, causing both chandeliers to fall to the floor. The lamps of one had already been extinguished, but fortunately in its rapid descent they were not extinguished, otherwise a conflagration would have been inevitable, for every one of the lamps were smashed, and the kerosene oil poured over the floor. The other chandelier had not been lit, the section having just commenced, and the fall of the chandelier was so great a height, it sustained less injury than the other. We congratulate the owners of the building upon this providential escape from a fire, which, if it had occurred, would have been extinguished before the interior of the church had suffered great damage.

HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS' COFFIN.—The casket constructed by Mr. Wickes for the mortal remains of Prince Leoluca, is a magnificent piece of workmanship. It is made of an artistic combination of pine and oak woods, of surpassing richness of grain, and beauty of finish. In the center of the lid is a large silver plate surrounded by a wreath of leaves in frosted silver, in which is engraved the following inscription:

HIS ROYAL HIGHNESS
Prince William Fitz
Leoluca, Kalanialuohu
Knight Grand Cross of the Order of the Hawaiian Islands
Member of the House of Nobles,
Member of the Privy Council of State,
Died Honolulu,
April 10th A. D. 1877
Aged 22 Years.

Above the plate is a wreath of leaves. All this silver work was done by Messrs. Weimer and Peterson.

PAY DIRECTOR DONAN.—Regarding this gentleman, who was stationed at this port for a time, we clip the following from a San Francisco paper: "Pay Director John S. Cunningham, of the United States Navy, left Monday morning by the overland train for Washington. He is succeeded in the Navy Pay Office by the veteran Pay Director, Edward C. Donan, a gentleman who has resided for several years on this coast and is highly respected. He has been thirty-two years in the service of the United States Navy. In 1875, he was on duty in Honolulu, and returned in the latter part of that year to San Francisco. Mr. Donan occupies the same position nine years ago to which he is now appointed. He is fourth on the list of Pay Directors, having been originally appointed September 15, 1867.

AN INTERESTING OLD MONK. Ballein has been so fortunate as to secure a wooden dog, which was quite recently discovered in a cave on the island of Hawaii, on the lower slopes of Mount Mauna Kea. It is comparatively well executed, showing a great amount of skill on the style of art exhibited in the idols found on Dr. Trousseau's sheep ranch some months ago, which doubtless belonged to a much earlier period. It is cut out from a solid log of some light-colored wood, probably Mamane, and stands three feet in height, including pedestal. The image has the usual aspect of a deity, with a face which is somewhat distorted, and the features, especially the mouth, are hideously distorted. The most remarkable thing about the statue is the fact that it is made of a single piece of wood, and that it is so perfectly finished, showing a great amount of skill on the style of art exhibited in the idols found on Dr. Trousseau's sheep ranch some months ago, which doubtless belonged to a much earlier period. It is cut out from a solid log of some light-colored wood, probably Mamane, and stands three feet in height, including pedestal. The image has the usual aspect of a deity, with a face which is somewhat distorted, and the features, especially the mouth, are hideously distorted. The most remarkable thing about the statue is the fact that it is made of a single piece of wood, and that it is so perfectly finished, showing a great amount of skill on the style of art exhibited in the idols found on Dr. Trousseau's sheep ranch some months ago, which doubtless belonged to a much earlier period. It is cut out from a solid log of some light-colored wood, probably Mamane, and stands three feet in height, including pedestal. The image has the usual aspect of a deity, with a face which is somewhat distorted, and the features, especially the mouth, are hideously distorted. The most remarkable thing about the statue is the fact that it is made of a single piece of wood, and that it is so perfectly finished, showing a great amount of skill on the style of art exhibited in the idols found on Dr. Trousseau's sheep ranch some months ago, which doubtless belonged to a much earlier period. It is cut out from a solid log of some light-colored wood, probably Mamane, and stands three feet in height, including pedestal. The image has the usual aspect of a deity, with a face which is somewhat distorted, and the features, especially the mouth, are hideously distorted. The most remarkable thing about the statue is the fact that it is made of a single piece of wood, and that it is so perfectly finished, showing a great amount of skill on the style of art exhibited in the idols found on Dr. Trousseau's sheep ranch some months ago, which doubtless belonged to a much earlier period. It is cut out from a solid log of some light-colored wood, probably Mamane, and stands three feet in height, including pedestal. The image has the usual aspect of a deity, with a face which is somewhat distorted, and the features, especially the mouth, are hideously distorted. The most remarkable thing about the statue is the fact that it is made of a single piece of wood, and that it is so perfectly finished, showing a great amount of skill on the style of art exhibited in the idols found on Dr. Trousseau's sheep ranch some months ago, which doubtless belonged to a much earlier period. It is cut out from a solid log of some light-colored wood, probably Mamane, and stands three feet in height, including pedestal. The image has the usual aspect of a deity, with a face which is somewhat distorted, and the features, especially the mouth, are hideously distorted. The most remarkable thing about the statue is the fact that it is made of a single piece of wood, and that it is so perfectly finished, showing a great amount of skill on the style of art exhibited in the idols found on Dr. Trousseau's sheep ranch some months ago, which doubtless belonged to a much earlier period. It is cut out from a solid log of some light-colored wood, probably Mamane, and stands three feet in height, including pedestal. The image has the usual aspect of a deity, with a face which is somewhat distorted, and the features, especially the mouth, are hideously distorted. The most remarkable thing about the statue is the fact that it is made of a single piece of wood, and that it is so perfectly finished, showing a great amount of skill on the style of art exhibited in the idols found on Dr. Trousseau's sheep ranch some months ago, which doubtless belonged to a much earlier period. It is cut out from a solid log of some light-colored wood, probably Mamane, and stands three feet in height, including pedestal. The image has the usual aspect of a deity, with a face which is somewhat distorted, and the features, especially the mouth, are hideously distorted. The most remarkable thing about the statue is the fact that it is made of a single piece of wood, and that it is so perfectly finished, showing a great amount of skill on the style of art exhibited in the idols found on Dr. Trousseau's sheep ranch some months ago, which doubtless belonged to a much earlier period. It is cut out from a solid log of some light-colored wood, probably Mamane, and stands three feet in height, including pedestal. The image has the usual aspect of a deity, with a face which is somewhat distorted, and the features, especially the mouth, are hideously distorted. The most remarkable thing about the statue is the fact that it is made of a single piece of wood, and that it is so perfectly finished, showing a great amount of skill on the style of art exhibited in the idols found on Dr. Trousseau's sheep ranch some months ago, which doubtless belonged to a much earlier period. It is cut out from a solid log of some light-colored wood, probably Mamane, and stands three feet in height, including pedestal. The image has the usual aspect of a deity, with a face which is somewhat distorted, and the features, especially the mouth, are hideously distorted. The most remarkable thing about the statue is the fact that it is made of a single piece of wood, and that it is so perfectly finished, showing a great amount of skill on the style of art exhibited in the idols found on Dr. Trousseau's sheep ranch some months ago, which doubtless belonged to a much earlier period. It is cut out from a solid log of some light-colored wood, probably Mamane, and stands three feet in height, including pedestal. The image has the usual aspect of a deity, with a face which is somewhat distorted, and the features, especially the mouth, are hideously distorted. The most remarkable thing about the statue is the fact that it is made of a single piece of wood, and that it is so perfectly finished, showing a great amount of skill on the style of art exhibited in the idols found on Dr. Trousseau's sheep ranch some months ago, which doubtless belonged to a much earlier period. It is cut out from a solid log of some light-colored wood, probably Mamane, and stands three feet in height, including pedestal. The image has the usual aspect of a deity, with a face which is somewhat distorted, and the features, especially the mouth, are hideously distorted. The most remarkable thing about the statue is the fact that it is made of a single piece of wood, and that it is so perfectly finished, showing a great amount of skill on the style of art exhibited in the idols found on Dr. Trousseau's sheep ranch some months ago, which doubtless belonged to a much earlier period. It is cut out from a solid log of some light-colored wood, probably Mamane, and stands three feet in height, including pedestal. The image has the usual aspect of a deity, with a face which is somewhat distorted, and the features, especially the mouth, are hideously distorted. The most remarkable thing about the statue is the fact that it is made of a single piece of wood, and that it is so perfectly finished, showing a great amount of skill on the style of art exhibited in the idols found on Dr. Trousseau's sheep ranch some months ago, which doubtless belonged to a much earlier period. It is cut out from a solid log of some light-colored wood, probably Mamane, and stands three feet in height, including pedestal. The image has the usual aspect of a deity, with a face which is somewhat distorted, and the features, especially the mouth, are hideously distorted. The most remarkable thing about the statue is the fact that it is made of a single piece of wood, and that it is so perfectly finished, showing a great amount of skill on the style of art exhibited in the idols found on Dr. Trousseau's sheep ranch some months ago, which doubtless belonged to a much earlier period. It is cut out from a solid log of some light-colored wood, probably Mamane, and stands three feet in height, including pedestal. The image has the usual aspect of a deity, with a face which is somewhat distorted, and the features, especially the mouth, are hideously distorted. The most remarkable thing about the statue is the fact that it is made of a single piece of wood, and that it is so perfectly finished, showing a great amount of skill on the style of art exhibited in the idols found on Dr. Trousseau's sheep ranch some months ago, which doubtless belonged to a much earlier period. It is cut out from a solid log of some light-colored wood, probably Mamane, and stands three feet in height, including pedestal. The image has the usual aspect of a deity, with a face which is somewhat distorted, and the features, especially the mouth, are hideously distorted. The most remarkable thing about the statue is the fact that it is made of a single piece of wood, and that it is so perfectly finished, showing a great amount of skill on the style of art exhibited in the idols found on Dr. Trousseau's sheep ranch some months ago, which doubtless belonged to a much earlier period. It is cut out from a solid log of some light-colored wood, probably Mamane, and stands three feet in height, including pedestal. The image has the usual aspect of a deity, with a face which is somewhat distorted, and the features, especially the mouth, are hideously distorted. The most remarkable thing about the statue is the fact that it is made of a single piece of wood, and that it is so perfectly finished, showing a great amount of skill on the style of art exhibited in the idols found on Dr. Trousseau's sheep ranch some months ago, which doubtless belonged to a much earlier period. It is cut out from a solid log of some light-colored wood, probably Mamane, and stands three feet in height, including pedestal. The image has the usual aspect of a deity, with a face which is somewhat distorted, and the features, especially the mouth, are hideously distorted. The most remarkable thing about the statue is the fact that it is made of a single piece of wood, and that it is so perfectly finished, showing a great amount of skill on the style of art exhibited in the idols found on Dr. Trousseau's sheep ranch some months ago, which doubtless belonged to a much earlier period. It is cut out from a solid log of some light-colored wood, probably Mamane, and stands three feet in height, including pedestal. The image has the usual aspect of a deity, with a face which is somewhat distorted, and the features, especially the mouth, are hideously distorted. The most remarkable thing about the statue is the fact that it is made of a single piece of wood, and that it is so perfectly finished, showing a great amount of skill on the style of art exhibited in the idols found on Dr. Trousseau's sheep ranch some months ago, which doubtless belonged to a much earlier period. It is cut out from a solid log of some light-colored wood, probably Mamane, and stands three feet in height, including pedestal. The image has the usual aspect of a deity, with a face which is somewhat distorted, and the features, especially the mouth, are hideously distorted. The most remarkable thing about the statue is the fact that it is made of a single piece of wood, and that it is so perfectly finished, showing a great amount of skill on the style of art exhibited in the idols found on Dr. Trousseau's sheep ranch some months ago, which doubtless belonged to a much earlier period. It is cut out from a solid log of some light-colored wood, probably Mamane, and stands three feet in height, including pedestal. The image has the usual aspect of a deity, with a face which is somewhat distorted, and the features, especially the mouth, are hideously distorted. The most remarkable thing about the statue is the fact that it is made of a single piece of wood, and that it is so perfectly finished, showing a great amount of skill on the style of art exhibited in the idols found on Dr. Trousseau's sheep ranch some months ago, which doubtless belonged to a much earlier period. It is cut out from a solid log of some light-colored wood, probably Mamane, and stands three feet in height, including pedestal. The image has the usual aspect of a deity, with a face which is somewhat distorted, and the features, especially the mouth, are hideously distorted. The most remarkable thing about the statue is the fact that it is made of a single piece of wood, and that it is so perfectly finished, showing a great amount of skill on the style of art exhibited in the idols found on Dr. Trousseau's sheep ranch some months ago, which doubtless belonged to a much earlier period. It is cut out from a solid log of some light-colored wood, probably Mamane, and stands three feet in height, including pedestal. The image has the usual aspect of a deity, with a face which is somewhat distorted, and the features, especially the mouth, are hideously distorted. The most remarkable thing about the statue is the fact that it is made of a single piece of wood, and that it is so perfectly finished, showing a great amount of skill on the style of art exhibited in the idols found on Dr. Trousseau's sheep ranch some months ago, which doubtless belonged to a much earlier period. It is cut out from a solid log of some light-colored wood, probably Mamane, and stands three feet in height, including pedestal. The image has the usual aspect of a deity, with a face which is somewhat distorted, and the features, especially the mouth, are hideously distorted. The most remarkable thing about the statue is the fact that it is made of a single piece of wood, and that it is so perfectly finished, showing a great amount of skill on the style of art exhibited in the idols found on Dr. Trousseau's sheep ranch some months ago, which doubtless belonged to a much earlier period. It is cut out from a solid log of some light-colored wood, probably Mamane, and stands three feet in height, including pedestal. The image has the usual aspect of a deity, with a face which is somewhat distorted, and the features, especially the mouth, are hideously distorted. The most remarkable thing about the statue is the fact that it is made of a single piece of wood, and that it is so perfectly finished, showing a great amount of skill on the style of art exhibited in the idols found on Dr. Trousseau's sheep ranch some months ago, which doubtless belonged to a much earlier period. It is cut out from a solid log of some light-colored wood, probably Mamane, and stands three feet in height, including pedestal. The image has the usual aspect of a deity, with a face which is somewhat distorted, and the features, especially the mouth, are hideously distorted. The most remarkable thing about the statue is the fact that it is made of a single piece of wood, and that it is so perfectly finished, showing a great amount of skill on the style of art exhibited in the idols found on Dr. Trousseau's sheep ranch some months ago, which doubtless belonged to a much earlier period. It is cut out from a solid log of some light-colored wood, probably Mamane, and stands three feet in height, including pedestal. The image has the usual aspect of a deity, with a face which is somewhat distorted, and the features, especially the mouth, are hideously distorted. The most remarkable thing about the statue is the fact that it is made of a single piece of wood, and that it is so perfectly finished, showing a great amount of skill on the style of art exhibited in the idols found on Dr. Trousseau's sheep ranch some months ago, which doubtless belonged to a much earlier period. It is cut out from a solid log of some light-colored wood, probably Mamane, and stands three feet in height, including pedestal. The image has the usual aspect of a deity, with a face which is somewhat distorted, and the features, especially the mouth, are hideously distorted. The most remarkable thing about the statue is the fact that it is made of a single piece of wood, and that it is so perfectly finished, showing a great amount of skill on the style of art exhibited in the idols found on Dr. Trousseau's sheep ranch some months ago, which doubtless belonged to a much earlier period. It is cut out from a solid log of some light-colored wood, probably Mamane, and stands three feet in height, including pedestal. The image has the usual aspect of a deity, with a face which is somewhat distorted, and the features, especially the mouth, are hideously distorted. The most remarkable thing about the statue is the fact that it is made of a single piece of wood, and that it is so perfectly finished, showing a great amount of skill on the style of art exhibited in the idols found on Dr. Trousseau's sheep ranch some months ago, which doubtless belonged to a much earlier period. It is cut out from a solid log of some light-colored wood, probably Mamane, and stands three feet in height, including pedestal. The image has the usual aspect of a deity, with a face which is somewhat distorted, and the features, especially the mouth, are hideously distorted. The most remarkable thing about the statue is the fact that it is made of a single piece of wood, and that it is so perfectly finished, showing a great amount of skill on the style of art exhibited in the idols found on Dr. Trousseau's sheep ranch some months ago, which doubtless belonged to a much earlier period. It is cut out from a solid log of some light-colored wood, probably Mamane, and stands three feet in height, including pedestal. The image has the usual aspect of a deity, with a face which is somewhat distorted, and the features, especially the mouth, are hideously distorted. The most remarkable thing about the statue is the fact that it is made of a single piece of wood, and that it is so perfectly finished, showing a great amount of skill on the style of art exhibited in the idols found on Dr. Trousseau's sheep ranch some months ago, which doubtless belonged to a much earlier period. It is cut out from a solid log of some light-colored wood, probably Mamane, and stands three feet in height, including pedestal. The image has the usual aspect of a deity, with a face which is somewhat distorted, and the features, especially the mouth, are hideously distorted. The most remarkable thing about the statue is the fact that it is made of a single piece of wood, and that it is so perfectly finished, showing a great amount of skill on the style of art exhibited in the idols found on Dr. Trousseau's sheep ranch some months ago, which doubtless belonged to a much earlier period. It is cut out from a solid log of some light-colored wood, probably Mamane, and stands three feet in height, including pedestal. The image has the usual aspect of a deity, with a face which is somewhat distorted, and the features, especially the mouth, are hideously distorted. The most remarkable thing about the statue is the fact that it is made of a single piece of wood, and that it is so perfectly finished, showing a great amount of skill on the style of art exhibited in the idols found on Dr. Trousseau's sheep ranch some months ago, which doubtless belonged to a much earlier period. It is cut out from a solid log of some light-colored wood, probably Mamane, and stands three feet in height, including pedestal. The image has the usual aspect of a deity, with a face which is somewhat distorted, and the features, especially the mouth, are hideously distorted. The most remarkable thing about the statue is the fact that it is made of a single piece of wood, and that it is so perfectly finished, showing a great amount of skill on the style of art exhibited in the idols found on Dr. Trousseau's sheep ranch some months ago, which doubtless belonged to a much earlier period. It is cut out from a solid log of some light-colored wood, probably Mamane, and stands three feet in height, including pedestal. The image has the usual aspect of a deity, with a face which is somewhat distorted, and the features, especially the mouth, are hideously distorted. The most remarkable thing about the statue is the fact that it is made of a single piece of wood, and that it is so perfectly finished, showing a great amount of skill on the style of art exhibited in the idols found on Dr. Trousseau's sheep ranch some months ago, which doubtless belonged to a much earlier period. It is cut out from a solid log of some light-colored wood, probably Mamane, and stands three feet in height, including pedestal. The image has the usual aspect of a deity, with a face which is somewhat distorted, and the features, especially the mouth, are hideously distorted. The most remarkable thing about the statue is the fact that it is made of a single piece of wood, and that it is so perfectly finished, showing a great amount of skill on the style of art exhibited in the idols found on Dr. Trousseau's sheep ranch some months ago, which doubtless belonged to a much earlier period. It is cut out from a solid log of some light-colored wood, probably Mamane, and stands three feet in height, including pedestal. The image has the usual aspect of a deity, with a face which is somewhat distorted, and the features, especially the mouth, are hideously distorted. The most remarkable thing about the statue is the fact that it is made of a single piece of wood, and that it is so perfectly finished, showing a great amount of skill on the style of art exhibited in the idols found on Dr. Trousseau's sheep ranch some months ago, which doubtless belonged to a much earlier period. It is cut out from a solid log of some light-colored wood, probably Mamane, and stands three feet in height, including pedestal. The image has the usual aspect of a deity, with a face which is somewhat distorted, and the features, especially the mouth, are hideously distorted. The most remarkable thing about the statue is the fact that it is made of a single piece of wood, and that it is so perfectly finished, showing a great amount of skill on the style of art exhibited in the idols found on Dr. Trousseau's sheep ranch some months ago, which doubtless belonged to a much earlier period. It is cut out from a solid log of some light-colored wood, probably Mamane, and stands three feet in height, including pedestal. The image has the usual aspect of a deity, with a face which is somewhat distorted, and the features, especially the mouth, are hideously distorted. The most remarkable thing about the statue is the fact that it is made of a single piece of wood, and that it is so perfectly finished, showing a great amount of skill on the style of art exhibited in the idols found on Dr. Trousseau's sheep ranch some months ago, which doubtless belonged to a much earlier period. It is cut out from a solid log of some light-colored wood, probably Mamane, and stands three feet in height, including pedestal. The image has the usual aspect of a deity, with a face which is somewhat distorted, and the features, especially the mouth, are hideously distorted. The most remarkable thing about the statue is the fact that it is made of a single piece of wood, and that it is so perfectly finished, showing a great amount of skill on the style of art exhibited in the idols found on Dr. Trousseau's sheep ranch some months ago, which doubtless belonged to a much earlier period. It is cut out from a solid log of some light-colored wood, probably Mamane, and stands three feet in height, including pedestal. The image has the usual aspect of a deity, with a face which is somewhat distorted, and the features, especially the mouth, are hideously distorted. The most remarkable thing about the statue is the fact that it is made of a single piece of wood, and that it is so perfectly finished, showing a great amount of skill on the style of art exhibited in the idols found on Dr. Trousseau's sheep ranch some months ago, which doubtless belonged to a much earlier period. It is cut out from a solid log of some light-colored wood, probably Mamane, and stands three feet in height, including pedestal. The image has the usual aspect of a deity, with a face which is somewhat distorted, and the features, especially the mouth, are hideously distorted. The most remarkable thing about the statue is the fact that it is made of a single piece of wood, and that it is so perfectly finished, showing a great amount of skill on the style of art exhibited in the idols found on Dr. Trousseau's sheep ranch some months ago, which doubtless belonged to a much earlier period. It is cut out from a solid log of some light-colored wood, probably Mamane, and stands three feet in height, including pedestal. The image has the usual aspect of a deity, with a face which is somewhat distorted, and the features, especially the mouth, are hideously distorted. The most remarkable thing about the statue is the fact that it is made of a single piece of wood, and that it is so perfectly finished, showing a great amount of skill on the style of art exhibited in the idols found on Dr. Trousseau's sheep ranch some months ago, which doubtless belonged to a much earlier period. It is cut out from a solid log of some light-colored wood, probably Mamane, and stands three feet in height, including pedestal. The image has the usual aspect of a deity, with a face which is somewhat distorted, and the features, especially the mouth, are hideously distorted. The most remarkable thing about the statue is the fact that it is made of a single piece of wood, and that it is so perfectly finished, showing a great amount of skill on the style of art exhibited in the idols found on Dr. Trousseau's sheep ranch some months ago, which doubtless belonged to a much earlier period. It is cut out from a solid log of some light-colored wood, probably Mamane, and stands three feet in height, including pedestal. The image has the usual aspect of a deity, with a face which is somewhat distorted, and the features, especially the mouth, are hideously distorted. The most remarkable thing about the statue is the fact that it is made of a single piece of wood, and that it is so perfectly finished, showing a great amount of skill on the style of art exhibited in the idols found on Dr. Trousseau's sheep ranch some months ago, which doubtless belonged to a much earlier period. It is cut out from a solid log of some light-colored wood, probably Mamane, and stands three feet in height, including pedestal. The image has the usual aspect of a deity, with a face which is somewhat distorted, and the features, especially the mouth, are hideously distorted. The most remarkable thing about the statue is the fact that it is made of a single piece of wood, and that it is so perfectly finished, showing a great amount of skill on the style of art exhibited in the idols found on Dr. Trousseau's sheep ranch some months ago, which doubtless belonged to a much earlier period. It is cut out from a solid log of some light-colored wood, probably Mamane, and stands three feet in height, including pedestal. The image has the usual aspect of a deity, with a face which is somewhat distorted, and the features, especially the mouth, are hideously distorted. The most remarkable thing about the statue is the fact that it is made of a single piece of wood, and that it is so perfectly finished, showing a great amount of skill on the style of art exhibited in the idols found on Dr. Trousseau's sheep ranch some months ago, which doubtless belonged to a much earlier period. It is cut out from a solid log of some light-colored wood, probably Mamane, and stands three feet in height, including pedestal. The image has the usual aspect of a deity, with a face which is somewhat distorted, and the features, especially the mouth, are hideously distorted. The most remarkable thing about the statue is the fact that it is made of a single piece of wood, and that it is so perfectly finished, showing a great amount of skill on the style of art exhibited in the idols found on Dr. Trousseau's sheep ranch some months ago, which doubtless belonged to a much earlier period. It is cut out from a solid log of some light-colored wood, probably Mamane, and stands three feet in height, including pedestal. The image has the usual aspect of a deity, with a face which is somewhat distorted, and the features, especially the mouth, are hideously distorted. The most remarkable thing about the statue is the fact that it is made of a single piece of wood, and that it is so perfectly finished, showing a great amount of skill on the style of art exhibited in the idols found